

Why is Rosen suing Cyberlux?

Description

RB Capital Partners, Inc. is knocking on Cyberlux Corporation's door with a lawsuit, and they're not exactly bringing a fruit basket. The case, filed in sunny San Diego, is a classic tale of "You borrowed, you promised, you didn't pay" now we sue. • RB Capital, a venture capital lender, alleges that Cyberlux, a defense tech company, took out multiple loans, racked up a cool $5.6 million in debt (give or take some interest), and then ghosted when the bill came due.

The loans, ranging from $250,000 to $1.5 million a pop, were all tied to convertible promissory notes, meaning there was potential for repayment in cash or company shares. Cyberlux, however, appears to believe it pulled a Houdini move on at least one of those debts, allegedly converting a note into equity in December 2023. RB Capital isn't buying it. They claim Cyberlux never followed through on the agreed conversion conditions, making the debt very much alive and kicking.

RB Capital isn't just looking for its money back—they want a judge to officially confirm that Cyberlux still owes them every penny, plus interest, plus legal fees, plus whatever extra headaches they can legally claim. The case is shaping up to be a financial tug-of-war where one side is waving paperwork and the other is likely preparing a defense that says, "Actually, about that money..."

RB_Capital_Partners_Inc_v_Cyberlux_Corporation_et_al__casdce-24-01434__0001.0Download

Disclaimer

All posts, articles, and op-eds about Cyberlux Corporation are grounded entirely in information sourced from publicly available court records, government documents, and financial disclosures filed with OTC Markets. This content is intended for informational purposes only—it's not legal advice, it's not financial guidance, and it's definitely not an invitation to dive headfirst into investment decisions. Our interpretations, opinions, and conclusions stem exclusively from these accessible resources. Ultimate adjudication of legal matters rests with the courts and qualified legal professionals. As always, you're encouraged to verify independently because, let's face it, trust but verify is a motto that never goes out of style. If you believe there is an error in our reporting and have verifiable proof, we encourage you to present it, and we will promptly review and address any inaccuracies.

Category

1. Cyberlux

Tags

1. cyberlux
2. factoring

Date Created

February 20, 2025

Author

jackson